Introduction

The web address for the QMUL online reading lists management system is: http://lists.library.qmul.ac.uk/. Sign in with your usual college ID. Please note: Firefox is recommended as the best browser for the system.

Creating an online reading list using this system is done following these steps:

1. Bookmark (collect) all your resources using various sources of information

- Bookmarking requires installing the bookmark button onto your browser's toolbar: this tool will enable you to pull in bibliographic data for resources you bookmark, in most cases, eliminating the need to enter bibliographic information manually for your titles
- You need to open your sources of information in additional tabs in your browser
- Primary sources for bookmarking are the QMUL library catalogue (which includes online books, journals, and subscription databases as well as print resources) and the QMRO database
- Secondary sources are other library catalogues (e.g. UoL libraries, British Library), union catalogues (e.g. COPAC, WorldCat), book vendors (e.g. Amazon), the Internet, etc.
- You can also import bookmarks from reference managers such as EndNote and Zotero as well as manually add a resource in Talis Aspire

2. Construct your list and populate it with your bookmarked resources

- Creating a list involves structuring and dividing it in to sections, adding notes and pages if relevant; resources included in the list require tagging as to their importance
- Once the list is saved, a Library review can be requested for acquisitions purposes

3. Publish your list

- Publishing a list takes it out from its draft status; your colleagues and students can view it
- It also allows you to invite list publishers, colleagues whom you would like to have contribute to your list

4. Link your list to a module and the VLE

- Module titles are pre-downloaded from Registry; just link your list to the right module
- Your list will be automatically linked to the VLE (QMplus) module page
- Your list is available to students but as the list owner, you can edit and update your list on a continuous basis

Building the UK's new supreme court: national and comparative perspectives
by Le Sueur, A. P
In the context of the far-reaching reforms proposed for the Appellate Committee of the House of Lords and the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, this book considers the operation and reform of courts at the apex of the UK's legal systems. The chapters are linked by broad and overlapping themes. The first of these is the complexity of accommodating national differences within the UK into the institutional design of the new supreme court. It will be not only a court for the UK's three legal systems, and simultaneously a national institution of the whole UK, but it is also likely to be called upon to resolve division of powers disputes within the emerging system of multi-level government. A second theme is the scope for comparative lesson-learning from top courts in other legal systems: the Supreme Court of Canada, the US federal courts system, and the constitutional courts in Germany and Spain are considered. Thirdly, the connections between the UK's top-level court and other courts, especially intermediate courts of appeal, the European Court of Justice, and the European Court of Human Rights are examined.

Your article is bookmarked in two parts: the first Article tab contains article information.

Note: if proper bibliographic data fails to appear for an article at the point of bookmarking, you can use DOI Lookup if the online article database offers a DOI (Digital Object Identifier) for that resource. Just copy and paste the DOI in the DOI Lookup field and click on Lookup.

The 'Is part of Journal' tab contains journal title information. Click on Create to finish.

Go back to your original window and to the reading lists tab; refresh your screen and the journal article will be there at the top of your list.

The crisis of 2007 - 09: nature, causes, and reactions
by Lastra, Rosa M; Wood, Geoffrey
This article analyses the nature and causes of the financial crisis of 2007-09 as well as the regulatory responses. There are two types of crises: banking crises, which affect the money stock and thus threaten the economy, and financial crises, which may destroy wealth but do not endanger the economy as a whole. Banking crises can be precipitated by a shortage of capital or by a shortage of liquidity. The 2007-09 crisis was a banking crisis, caused by a capital shortage. Numerous explanations have been given for this crisis. In this article these explanations are organized into ten groups. The main factors were easy money, excessive leverage, risk-management failures, bad lending, too-big-to-fail (TBTF) policies, inadequate supervision, and ill-thought-out regulation. The flurry of responses to the crisis is then summarized. Some are welcome, but the article concludes that unless the fear of failure returns to banking, so that management, shareholders, bondholders, and all creditors (except small depositors) suffer in a failure, then all other reforms will ultimately be pointless. Title: The Liberalisation of Trade in Services in MERCOSUR
Authors: Gari, Gabriel
Keywords: Law
Issue Date: 2008
Abstract: The purpose of this thesis is to examine the legal framework for the liberalisation of trade in services in MERCOSUR with a view to identifying the obstacles that stand against it and shed light on the best course of action for securing a realistic degree of liberalisation. The thesis argues that the Protocol of Montevideo on Trade in Services, the rounds of negotiations of specific commitments on Market Access and National Treatment and the secondary rules for specific service sectors adopted so far, have failed to make any significant contribution to ensuring effective market access conditions for MERCOSUR service suppliers and levelling the playing field to compete against domestic incumbents. It claims that for advancing the liberalisation of trade in services, it is necessary for State Parties to look beyond the negotiation of reciprocal concessions for the removal of existing restrictions, and engage on a long-term strategy aimed at bringing about the gradual convergence of domestic legislation affecting trade in services through regulatory co-operation. It also refers to the need for streamlining the operation of the current institutional system by adopting measures aimed at encouraging existing institutions to exercise their power in a more rule-oriented, transparent, accountable and efficient way, without compromising domestic sovereignty to a level unacceptable for State Parties. However, the thesis suggests that the absence of a matrix of converging national interests on MERCOSUR, and the existence of parallel forums for similar purposes at bilateral, regional and multilateral level, compromises its chances for success and wonders whether the effective integration of service markets could ever be achieved.

Go back to your reading lists tab and refresh your screen; your latest addition will be at the top of your list.

Bookmarking from Other Library Catalogues

Open the relevant library catalogue in another tab and search for your resource.

Resources from other libraries are generally bookmarked as web pages and proper data is not pulled in. When this happens, there is an additional step you can take to get the full bibliographic data.

Copy the ISBN of the title from the right into the ISBN Lookup field in the left. Then click on Lookup.

This action will pull in all available bibliographic data; however, you will lose the web link to the resource once this is done.

You can manually add a Web address field to the bookmark; this is useful as it will lead to resource location information, i.e. the library that holds the resource.

When you go back to your reading lists tab and refresh your screen, the latest addition will be at the top.

Bookmarking from Book Vendors

You have the option of temporarily bookmarking resources from a book vendor before asking the Library to purchase them. Go to your vendor and find your resource. Click on your Add to My Bookmarks button.

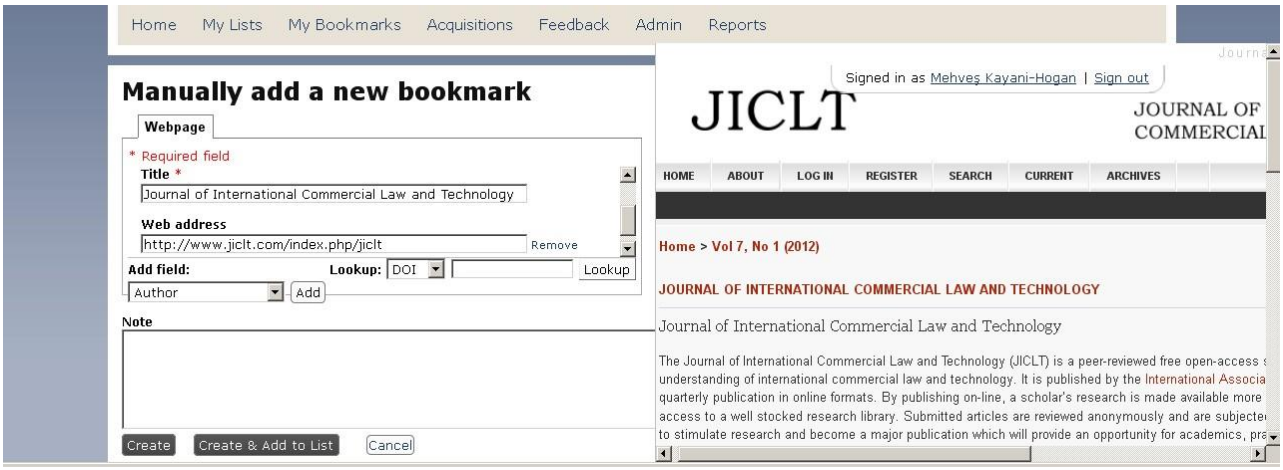
Bookmarking from the Internet

Bookmarking resources from the Internet is quite straightforward. Using your bookmark tool you can bookmark any open access web based resource.



It would be good to consider how authoritative and permanent these web sites/pages are; the reading lists system does not have a link checker and does not automatically remove/replace broken links. When bookmarking web-based resources, if provided by the web site, you should copy across permanent or persistent links that are less likely to be broken into the web address field of your bookmark.

You can bookmark audio and video resources too. When selecting your resources, please be aware of copyright issues.

Back to contents page

Bookmark the video in the usual way, making bibliographic amendments if required. Click on Create.

You resource will be added to your list. Depending on the video provider, videos might be embedded in the reading lists management system instead of being bookmarked as an external link.

Importing Bookmarks from Reference Managers

Instead of bookmarking your resources one-by-one, if you have your resources collected in A reference manager, you can import them into Talis Aspire. This requires first exporting the file from the reference manager and saving it, and then importing it into Talis Aspire

- EndNote Desktop

In EndNote Desktop, select your list and go to File/Export in the menu.

When the dialogue box comes up, name you file and check settings:

- In Save as type leave the default as it is, Text File (*txt.)
- In Output style select RefMan (RIS) Export
- Then click on Save.

Your file will be exported as a Talis Aspire compatible RIS file.

In Talis, go to My Bookmarks and click on Import. Browse for your file; select it and click on OK.

You will see a message telling you whether your import request has been successfully submitted; if it is, you will receive an email after a minute or so when the import is completed.

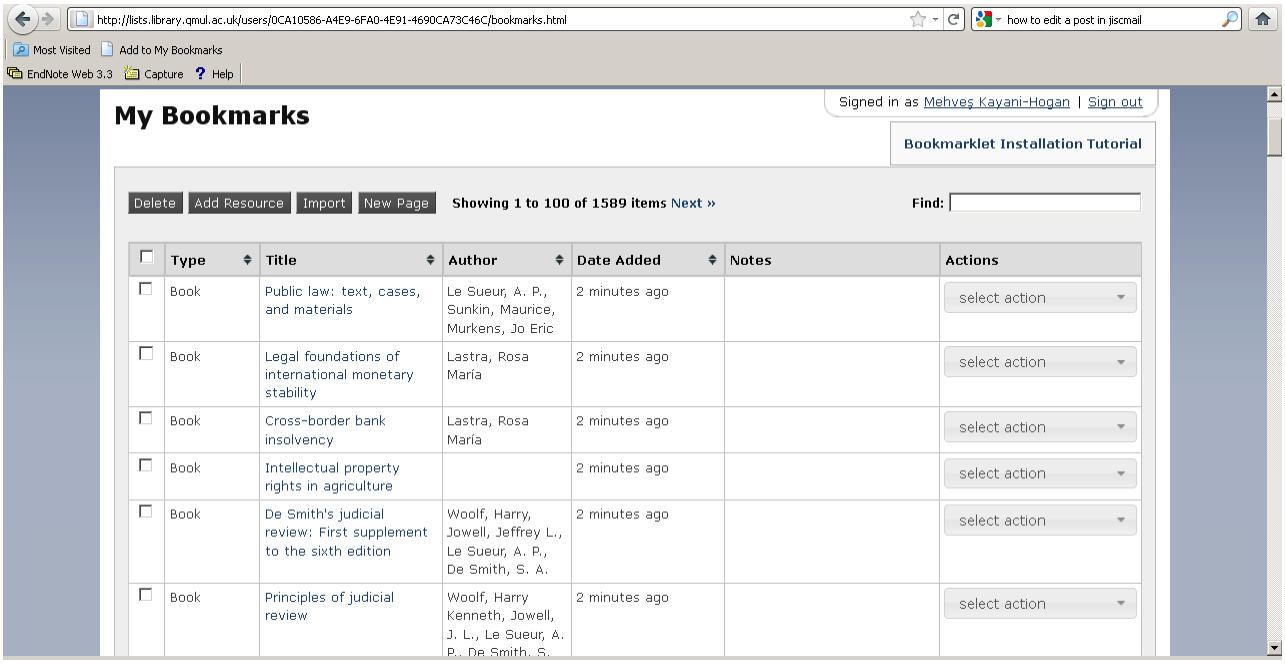
If you follow the link in your email, or if you refresh your bookmarks page, your imported bookmarks will be there in Talis.



Note: If ISBNs and DOIs were available in EndNote for your resources, these ISBNs and DOIs will also be imported into Talis. Using these ISBNs and DOIs, Talis will link these resources to the Library catalogue automatically provided that they are available in the Library.

Back to contents page

- EndNote Web

In EndNote Web, go to Format/Export References.

Select your References and Export style which should be RefMan (RIS) Export; and click on Save.

When a dialogue box comes up, click on Save File and OK.

Open the downloaded file and go to File/Save As from the menu.

Name the file and Save it.

Find your renamed file and right click on it: select Open With/WordPad.

- Once you open your file, go to File/Save As and add .ris to the file extension by deleting the .txt extension.
- Save the file. Then go to Talis and import the file in the usual way.

Select your resources; then, from Actions, select Export Library.

The file format will automatically be RIS, the format recognised by Talis for importing bookmarks. Click on OK.

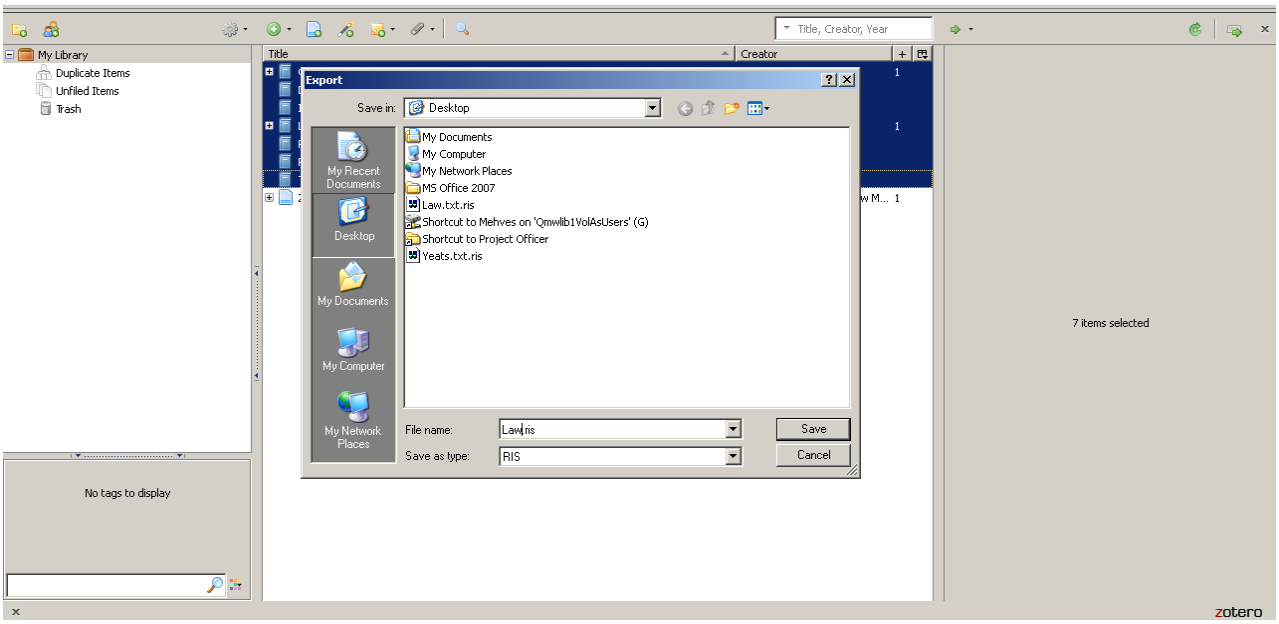
In the second dialogue box, the file type too will automatically be RIS with the file extension .ris added to the file name; re-name your file if you want to do so without changing any file extension name and click on Save. The file name format will be [filename].ris when a file is exported from Zotero, recognisable by Talis import.



Import your file into Talis Aspire in the usual way. If ISBNs and DOIs were available in Zotero for your resources, these ISBNs and DOIs will also be imported into Talis. Using these ISBNs and DOIs, Talis will link these resources to the Library catalogue automatically provided that they are available in the Library.

When should I manually
Signed in as Test Test | Sign out
You should only manually add items that you cannot find on the web. All items that can be found on the web should be bookmarked using the bookmarkleting tool. Using the bookmarkleting tool to harvest an item from your library catalogue, or from a publisher's website, not only fills in item metadata automatically, it also increases the chances of students being able to locate the item and enables other system functionality including library holdings and acquisitions functionality.
To install the browser bookmark tool follow the instructions below:
Bookmarklet Installation Tutorial
Some items, such as out of print or obscure items, do not have representations on the web, and these items can be added using the manual add screen
How do I use the manual add tool?

Creating a list

Naming a List

In your reading lists system, go to My Lists and click on the Create a New List button.

In List name, enter your module code and module name in title case. Anticipated student numbers field is helpful for the Library when deciding on the number of copies of resources to be bought. Under Description you can enter a description for the module. Click on OK.

The next dialogue box is for assigning a list owner. If the list creator is not the owner of the list, e.g. the list is created by support staff on behalf of a lecturer, the list creator can search for the lecturer and assign it to him or her. If not sure, you can cancel it and come back to it later.

Structuring a List

Once you create your list, you will be taken to the draft page. Structuring a list is just a matter of clicking and dragging a New Section in to your list. You can also add New Notes and New Pages.

You will be asked to enter a Title each time you drag in a section. Study note is note to your students: it is optional and editable. Click Save.

Keep on repeating this until your sections are complete. You can have as many sections as you wish; you can put them into one another; you can start a new section and continue. You can see in the Table of Contents at the top how your list is beginning to take shape. You can use the Table of Contents to move your sections around for re-structuring. All sections (names and notes) are editable and you can remove a section at any time.

You can also insert New Notes (can be used for entering explanatory text and extensive notes copied and pasted from Word documents) and New Pages (can be used for inserting additional audio visual content, images, etc.) in your list structure.

You have the option of saving your draft and coming back to it later by using the Save Draft button at the top.

Ethical and social perspectives on situational crime prevention
Arbitrability: international & comparative perspectives

You will be taken to the screen below and this is how the list is going to look to your students when you finally publish and attach it to a module. You also have options now, amongst which is a Request review tab to ask the library to review your list for acquisitions purposes before you make it available to your students. You can always go back to editing your list using the Edit tab.

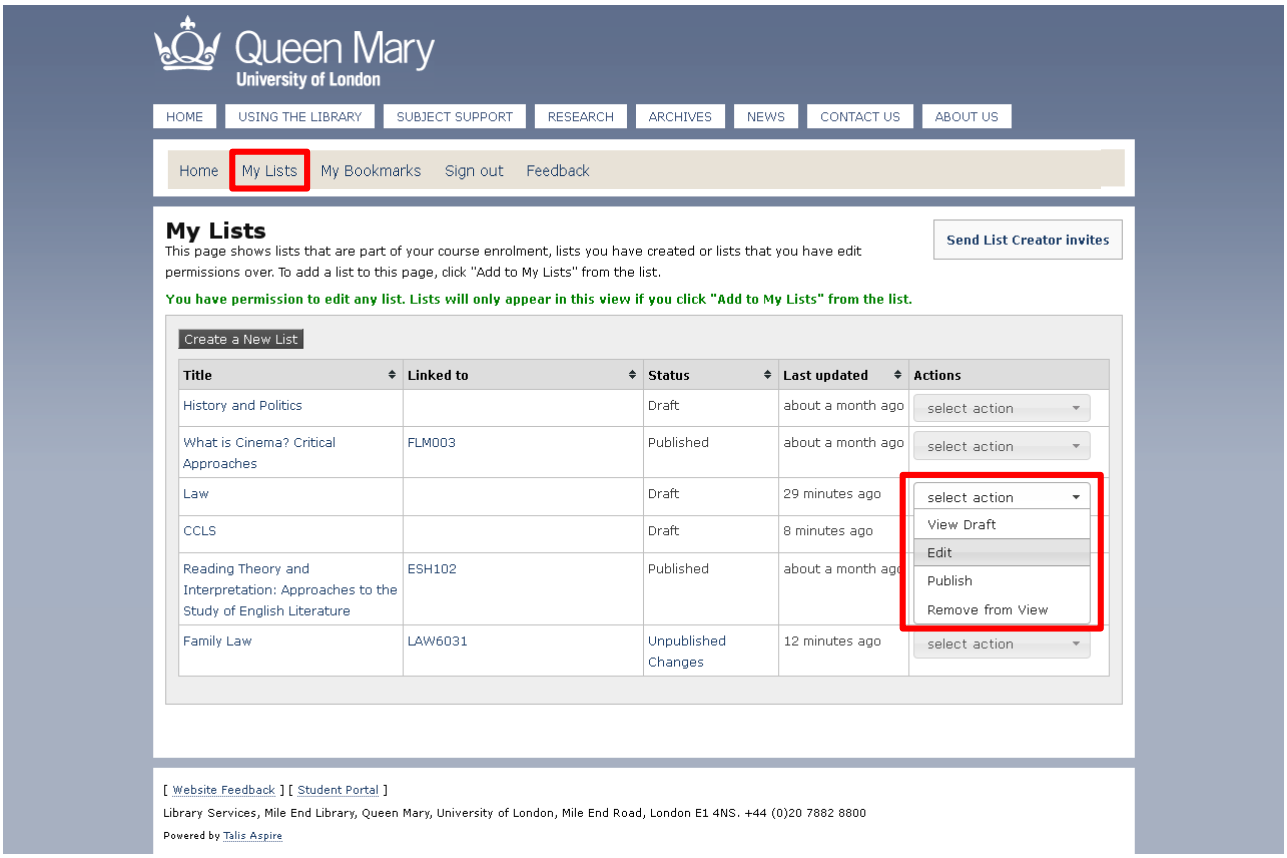
Editing a List

In My Lists, you will have all the lists that you created yourself. You can edit a reading list at any point: in its draft status, when it is published, even after it is linked to a module and the VLE and is available to your students. All you need to do is to open the select action drop down menu next to the list you want to work on and select Edit. This will take you to the original edit screen where you can continue to work on your list.



You can see other options in this drop-down menu, such as View Draft (to check student view), Publish (to take the list out from its draft status and make it available to your colleagues and the Library), and Remove from View (to remove the list from My Lists screen).

Important note: If you are editing a published list, please make sure that you re-publish your list so that your students can view the updated list. You do not need to re-link your list to the module or the VLE when you make changes and re-publish your list as the links are updated automatically.

Requesting Library Reviews

Once you complete your list, you can ask the Library to review your list so that resources on your list could be purchased. If you entered any notes for the Library while creating your list, the Library will be able to view them and respond to your requests. Go into your list and click on Request review.

The dialog box that comes up will remind you to set importance for your resources, if you had not done so already, because purchasing decisions made by the Library will be based on whether a resource is essential, recommended, or optional, as well as on other factors. Anticipated student numbers is another factor which affects decision-making; if you had not put in the number when creating your list, you have the option of doing so here. After you finish, click OK. The Library will be alerted about your request and will start reviewing your list. When the Library completes reviewing your list, you will receive an automated email to that effect.

Request Review
Are you sure you want to request a review for this list? Clicking OK will alert the library to review this list for acquisitions and metadata quality purposes.
Please ensure you have filled in as much information as possible before requesting a review. Once a review has been requested you will not be able to request another until the library has processed and completed the outstanding review.
Currently you have set the importance of 1 out of 6 items
Setting the importance of an item helps the library make acquisition decisions. You can set item importance whilst in list edit mode (cancel this dialogue box and then choose "Edit").
Anticipated student numbers:
Telling the library about the anticipated level of students using this list helps support acquisition decisions.

Getting list usage statistics

The Dashboard tool in a list allows one to gather basic list usage statistics. This tool can be useful for identifying well-used resources as well as ones that are not popular. Click on the Dashboard button.

The Dashboard box will come up with Page views (number of times the list has been viewed) and Clicks (number of times item links have been followed) statistics. You can Choose date range. There are colour coded bars for High, Moderate, and Low resource use. If you scroll down in the list, each resource on the list will now be colour-coded to reflect usage.

The Show me alternatives button in a title brings up the Alternative resources box. Based on the use of that particular title on similar courses in other institutions using Talis Aspire, some potential alternatives are suggested.
